Thanksgiving in Oxford

November 30, 1912

The Stores Close and Merchants Go to Fields and Woods for Birds.

All the stores and business houses of Oxford closed up Thanksgiving and the day was one of rejoicing. Early in the week a number of good ladies made diligent search for families who were not likely to have a turkey on their tables, and they found a half dozen places to leave big fat fowls. With the poor and needy well supplied, it is presumed that everybody else enjoyed a sumptuous meal. It is estimated that 250 turkeys were beheaded for the feast. This estimate does not include the dinner at the Orphan Asylum, where several large birds contributed to the happiness of the little people.

Those who did not go gunning for rabbits and birds spent the day in visiting friends and neighbors. Quite a number went over to Richmond to see the Carolina-Virginia foot-ball game.

Services were held at St. Stephens Episcopal Church at 11 o'clock, and was largely attended.

The Thanksgiving service at the Presbyterian church was held Wednesday evening. Dr. HORSFIELD, of the Episcopal church, made a splendid talk and the singing was inspiring.

The happiest place to be found on Thanksgiving Day is an orphan asylum and the big institution at the head of College street, where three hundred and fifty children are cared for is the happiest of them all. Nice things from all over the State began rolling in Wednesday, but to make the feast doubly sure and a little sweeter the good people of Oxford chipped in a hundred or more dollars. Yes, there is happiness in an orphan asylum! There is no prettier sight than to see these neat little children enjoying a sumptuous dinner on Thanksgiving and Christmas. The very hand of God is visible on all such occasions!

County Was Formed Back In Year 1881

City of Henderson Grew So Rapidly Legislature Was Prevailed Upon To Make It County Seat Of Separate County

“In fourteen hundred and ninety two, Columbus sailed the ocean blue.”

He discovered the Island of San Salvador in the West Indies. About 1502, Americus VESPUCIUS was the first white man to reach the mainland, and, in his honor, our country was named “America”.

In 1585, the first white settlement was made on American soil at Roanoke Island, on the eastern coast of North Carolina. This colony was sent out by Sir Walter RALEIGH, in whose honor our State Capitol was named. In this colony was born the first white child born on American soil, “Virginia DARE”.

The governor of the colony returned to England for supplies. It was several years before he could return. Then he found that all the colony had disappeared.

In the past few years, quite a number of engraved stones have been found in South Carolina, which, it is claimed, prove the colony was captured by the Indian, and taken to that State. This is the "Lost Colony" story, from which a play is shown at Roanoke Island.

Around 1605 was Captain John SMITH'S expedition to eastern Virginia, of which he wrote a history.

In 1620, The "Virginia Company" started settlements at Jamestown, Va., which place was named for King James of England. The Lord Mayor of London was the president of that company.

In 1621, the "Mayflower Colony" landed at Plymouth Rock, Massachusetts.

In 1665, King Charles of England gave all of Carolina, which was named for him and then included Georgia, to eight of his noblemen, who were known as the Lord Proprietors. These governed the State for about seventy years.

In 1710, Carolina was divided into North and South Carolina.

In 1729, King George of England decided that these Lords Proprietors had been given too valuable a tract of land and asked them to return it to him. For this he paid each one 2500 pounds, about $12,000, which means he paid less than $100,000 for the entire State of North Carolina, which then extended as far west as there was any land. However, John CARTERET, Earl of Granville, refused to sell his one-eighth share, so, in 1746, what is known as "Old Granville" was cut off from Edgecombe county, and given to him as his share. This was all land from about the present eastern borders of Warren and Franklin counties, extending westward to the Pacific ocean.

The Earl of Granville sold this land cheap, which brought settlers from the eastern part of the State to the eastern section of the county, and settlers from Virginia to the northern section.

Particularly, owing to the severity of the French and Indian War, in 1752, the French stirring up the Indians against the English, it is said that thousands of families settled, men with many children and grandchildren, of the counties north of Richmond, New Kent, Hanover, Caroline, Goochland and others sacrificed their lands and "fled" over to south of the Roanoke river, where the Indians were friendly. So many moved that I understand Virginia passed a law forbidding any more. An interesting sidelight here is that these lands were not sold, many old grants of Virginia and our State being simply leases.

All I have seen of Granville's are leases, the purchaser paying him six to ten shillings down ($1.50 to $2.50) for each one hundred acres, and agreeing to pay him four to eight shillings more for each one hundred acres, when called for each fall.

In 1780, the Revolutionary new State of North Carolina confiscated all English lands, giving what had been sold to the owners, and selling outright what was left for fifty shillings (about $12.50) per one hundred acres. However, the Paris Treaty, made in Paris between the thirteen colonies and England, guaranteed all English land rights.

Some time later, the heirs of Granville sued for the return of all of Old Granville. As stated this extended to the Pacific ocean, so it is said, this was the largest land suit ever made.

The courts of North Carolina decided against the heirs, so they appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States. They were represented by Sir Francis Scott KEYES from England, but he died suddenly, and in the confusion of this, the appeal did not reach the Supreme Court in the time limit, so on that ground they refused to pass upon it. So we might say that the land we now live on belongs to the heirs of the Earl of Granville today.

Sir Francis Scott KEYES, referred to above, was the writer of "And the Star Spangled Banner in Triumph Shall Wave".

From 1746 to 1762, our first court house was at the home of Col. Wm EATON, which place is today known as our old County Home, about four miles southwest of Henderson. Then for about two years it was in front of Belwood, the present Joel T. CHEATHAM home, just out of Henderson, on the Oxford road. I am told that the State Historic Commission will soon put a marker at the correct spot.

In 1752, all lands west of the present western border of the present Granville county was cut off into Orange county, which, as the years went by, was cut up into many western counties.

In 1764, a jail and court house for old Granville county was started at Harrisburg, which was the eastern edge of Oxford, but plans were changed, and the buildings erected at Oxford, starting that city. Their present court house was finished in 1840, which event they celebrated with a Centennial in 1940. Soon after the court house was moved to Oxford, the eastern part of Granville county claimed it was too far from their homes, so, in 1768, this eastern section was cut off, starting Bute county.

Around 1780, this Bute county was divided into Warren county, named for General WARREN, of Revolutionary fame, and into Franklin county, named for Benjamin FRANKLIN.

By 1880, the City of Henderson had grown so much that our Representative at Raleigh asked that a new county be formed with Henderson as the county seat. The first plan was to name it "Gilliam" after our Judge Robert GILLIAM. (The old Gilliam place is about six miles northeast of Henderson, back of the present Hunter SATTERWHITE place, and the old house burned a few months ago.) The GILLIAM name did not get enough support, so the name of "DORTCH" was suggested, hoping to get the support of the delegates from the east, as he was from that section. This, too, failed.

Then they changed to "Vance", for our war-time governor, Zebulon Baird VANCE, who was also that year a retiring senator. This carried the proposition overwhelmingly, and a vote was ordered in the affected district.

Previous to this election, lawyers and prominent men of Oxford held many meetings, and did much speaking against the proposition, but the vote, I am told, was about 1491 in favor of the new county, with only 19 voting against it.

This new Vance county was about three-fourths from Granville county, with small sections in the east and south from Warren and Franklin counties.

The Henderson Centennial is, in part, a celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the forming of Vance county.

Searching for where Dr. John HARE and then his son, Dr. Leonard Henley HARE lived and are buried. Why did Dr. Leonard Henley HARE move his wife and their youngest two adult children to Alabama in 1859? Was there a large group moving to west central Alabama (around Tom Big Bee River) at that time?

Seeking information on the Thomas OAKLEY of Granville County in the late 1700s and early 1800s. Also any information about John H. OAKLEY (1797-1864) who married Catherine WOOD (1803-1866). Is there proof that John H. OAKLEY was the son of Thomas OAKLEY? John H. & Catherine moved to KY in the 1830s.

Historical Sketches of Franklin County

Part 2

In the article from the Raleigh Star of 1810 already published here it was stated – “there are few if any wealthy people in Franklin.” As a matter of interest to offset that somewhat there were well nigh 50 persons who listed for taxation that same year (1810) more than 1000 acres of land each – as follows:

Jeremiah PERRY, 3297; Joshua PERRY, 3302; Henry G. WILLIAMS, 3655; William WILLIAMS, 3655; William JEFFREYS, 4898; John CARPENTER, 1331; Jacob HARTSFIELD, 2282; Alexander FRAZIER, 1770; Benjamin BRICKELL, 1264; Richard ELY, 1017; William HARRISS, 2079; John FOSTER, 1400; George TUNSTALL, 2041; William ANDREWS, Sr., 2382; William ANDREWS, Jr., 2626; Henry GOODLIE, 1212; Benjamin ATKINSON, 1093; John HUCABY, 1443; Epes MOODY, 1300; Stephen OUTERBRIDGE, 1413; John PERRY, 1508; Samuel WILLIAMS, 1184; James YARBORO, 1000; Alex FALCONER, 1060; William BILBO, 1292; Jones COOKE, 1880; Ephraime CONYERS, 1287; Richard FENNER, 1334; James J. HILL, 1743; Nathaniel HUNT, 2242;

Fennig JONES, 1705; Simon JEFFREYS, 2949, James C. JONES, 1743; Joel SLEDGE, 1130; William GREEN, 3180; John MACLIN, 2530; Thomas ARENDELL, 1002; William HILL, 1025; Timothy THORP, 1027; Amos JONES, 1485; John D. HAWKINS, 2740; William HAWKINS, 1000; Francis TAYLOR, 2651; Griffin WRIGHT, 1120; Archibald DAVIS, 3000; Benjamin PERRY, 4085. That same year the population of the county numbering 10,156, comprised 4,655 white, 5,330 slaves and 171 free Negroes – or more than 1 slave to every man, woman and child among the whites. In the light of these figures just what constituted wealth in the estimate of the unknown writer of that article?

We give here – in part – the very singular will of Francis MABRY – member of a distinguished family of that name – recorded in Will Book 4, County Records, 1785:

In the name of God, Amen, the fifteenth day of June, 1773, I Francis MABRY of the County of Bute in North Carolina, being in perfect health, both of body and mind and memory, thanks be given under God therefore calling to mind the mortality of my body, and knowing that it is appointed for all men once to die, do make and ordain this my last Will and Testament, that is to say, principally and first of all, I give and recommend my soul into the hands of Almighty God that give it, and my body I recommend unto the earth to be buried in a decent Christian burial at the discretion of my Executors. Nothing doubting but at the General Resurrection, I shall be raised a spiritual body by the power of Almighty God, and as touching such worldly estate wherewith it has pleased God to bless me in this life, I give, demise and dispose of the same in the following manner and form.

First my desire is that my household goods be sold to discharge my debts and if there be not enough that my Executors or either of them, or their successors sell a tract of land lying between Little Bear Swamp and Linches Creek containing three hundred and ninety four acres. Item I give to my dutiful and well beloved grandson, John MABRY, the plantation where I now live with all the lands there-to belonging, that is to say, beginning at Macon's corner on the North side of Tar River, thence etc. etc., to him and his heirs forever, to be by him quietly enjoyed with all my other lands, Negroes, stock and movables with whatsoever I have any title, to be by him the said John MABRY, and his heirs freely and quietly enjoyed forever, and my will and desire is that the Negroes and stock be kept on the lands and that the said John MABRY be schooled and maintained out of the profits thereof until he be 21 years of age and then by him the remainder if any to be freely enjoyed, and I do appoint Capt. Joshua MABRY and Capt. Benj. WARD my executors of this my last Will and Testament.

As for Francis MABRY, Jr., Angelica MABRY, Amy RICHARDS, Jesse MABRY, Elizabeth MABRY and David MABRY, with my wife, I shall leave them to the sullen-self willed and foolish devil to be by them jointly and severally hereafter adored, as they have hitherto served all their lives and I think it not reasonable that they should be parted at their death or resurrection.

I do hereby utterly disallow and disanull all and every other former testaments, wills, legacies and bequests and executors by me, in any ways before named willed and bequeathed. Ratifying and confirming this and no other to be my last Will and Testament. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal the day and year above written.

Berea Items

Public Ledger, January 9, 1890

Mrs. J.C. CURRIN has been quite sick for several days.

The wheat crop has gone into winter quarters in a very bad fix.

There has been a drove of horses stopping at Berea the past week.

Squire Wm. DANIEL had the misfortune to lose two fine horses recently.

Mrs. Ella FULLER and children have returned home from a Christmas visit to relatives near Salem.

Rev. C.A. JENKINS preached his first sermon for 1891 at Mt. Zion last Sunday. We pronounce it a grand success.

Dr. John SWEANEY has been confined in his room with a rising in his throat, but we are glad to say he is much better.

One of our old batchelors who recently took unto himself a wife says that his wedding day was the happiest he has known for centuries.

Mrs. Broadie MEADOWS had the misfortune to lose one of her tenant houses by fire last Sunday while they were at church, but for the timely assistance of some of her neighbors her residence would also have been reduced to ashes.

Christmas has passed and we have not seen a single drunken man. There is no man that is too wise or smart while he is sober and it is sad indeed to see any one block his energy, limber his tongue and benumb his intellect with whiskey.

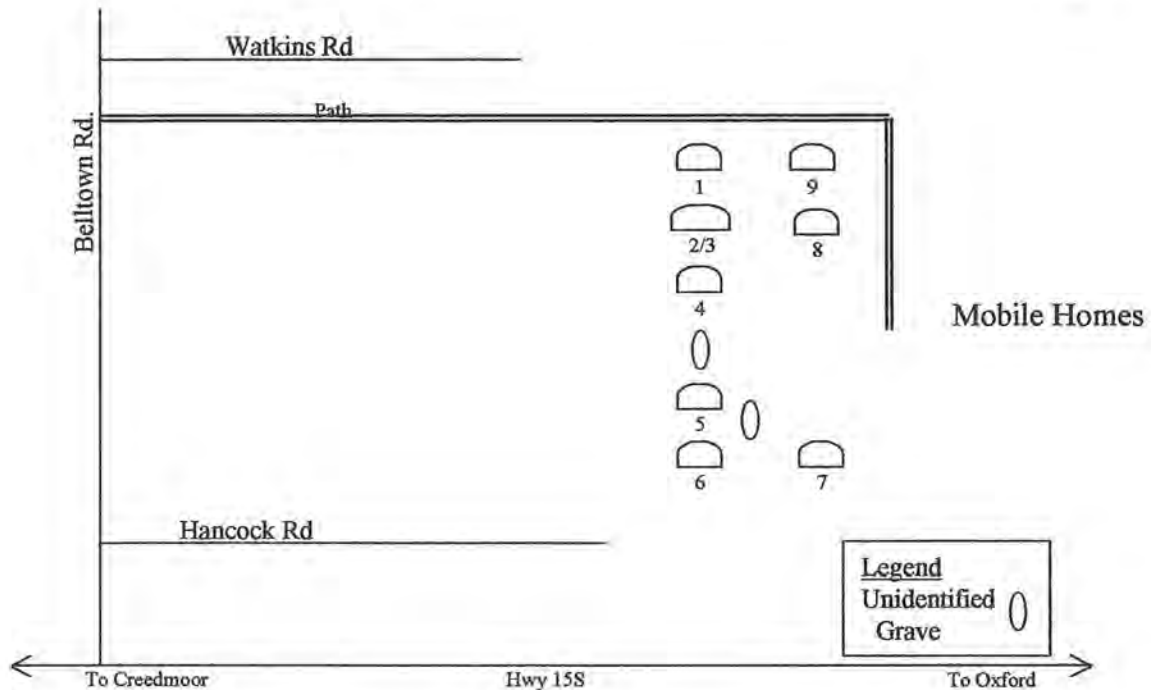

As the State lecturers of public schools are trying to impress our people and the present Legislature with the idea that our school tax is not high enough, we would suggest the tax is not too low but we are too poor and have too many children. This speaks bad for North Carolina.

The County of Warren Part I

The Brave New Name

Joseph WARREN, a Massachusetts doctor, intellectual and patriot, had spearheaded the Boston patriots in 1775. He had spoken fearlessly and striven energetically and sensibly for freedom from British rule. He had sent Paul REVERE on his famous ride; he had left his practice to join the minutemen at Concord; he had been a major general of Massachusetts militia. All who knew him said that he was of handsome presence and graceful manner, and the best homes south of the Roanoke, along Stonehouse or Sixpound or Shocco creeks or anywhere else in that region, would have been glad to welcome him as a guest and a friend.

But Joseph WARREN had died in the Battle of Bunker Hill, shot through the head as he rallied the men at the breastworks, and so the new county wished to bear his name, though nobody in Warren County would ever know him. The southern half of Bute would be named for Benjamin FRANKLIN.

The bill SEAWELL offered for the division of Bute needed three favorable readings in each house of the Assembly, and that April it was read for the first time only in the Senate, which passed it and sent it to the House of Commons. There it remained unread, for the new State of North Carolina was frantically busy fighting the British, and Bute County continued to bear its part under the hated name.¹

That same session of the 1777 Assembly saw a tenth regiment authorized for the Continental Army. Bute, with no more than 5,000 population, responded with its quota. By now Bute was included in the Halifax Military District. All able-bodied men between the ages of sixteen and sixty were registered as belonging to the county's regiment of militia, and the regiment was divided into companies with each company organized in turn into five divisions. The fifth of such a company's divisions included the oldest and most infirm men to be enlisted only in case of dire emergency. The other four could be called on by lot or otherwise to furnish troops for the repeated calls of the Continental Congress.²

SUMNER was absent, in command of his regiment. Philemon HAWKINS, Jr., also served as a colonel, though his previous military experience had consisted only of that brief campaign as Governor TRYON'S courier in the Regulator War. John MACON'S company was in the Seventh Regiment, marching to join WASHINGTON'S army after the disasters around New York City.³ Military supplies had to be gathered as well as men, and these were a difficult problem in a land of farms.

When the Assembly met again in November, SEAWELL'S bill was read the first time by the Wheeler, p. 425, and that of Philemon Hawkins, Jr., ibid., p. 427; John Macon's service in the Seventh North Carolina Regiment is established in Roster of Soldiers from North Carolina in the American Revolution (Durham, 1932), p. 94.

House of Commons, passed, and returned to the Senate. Meanwhile, Bute County soldiers under WASHINGTON had been roughly used in the battles of Brandywine and Germantown and sought melancholy winter quarters at Valley Forge. On November 22 the bill passed its second reading in the Senate, but when the House of Commons received it, the second reading there ended in rejection.⁴

All through 1778 the move to divide Bute into two new counties seemed forgotten, while the British, several times beaten in the North, turned southward to cut off and conquer the lower states. In May of 1778 Bute County was called upon for 105 men for the new regiments needed to face this and other threats⁵. Bute must also furnish clothing for the soldiers – seventy-six hats, 315 yards of linen, 152 yards of woolen cloth, and 152 pairs of shoes⁶. With difficulty the weavers and cobblers on Bute plantations managed to meet these demands. The tax that year was three pence for every pound value of “lands, lots, houses, slaves, money at interest, stock in trade, horses and cattle.”⁷ The paper money issued by the State was falling in value almost with every sunrise; the British troops began operations in Georgia and in December captured the town of Savannah.

As for the nine regiments of North Carolina troops that had borne their part in the warfare in New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey, casualties and discharges had so reduced them that by 1778 they were reorganized into three regiments, to command which Jethro SUMNER was promoted to brigadier general. He led his brigade to reinforce the Continental Army in the South at about the time that the Assembly convened once more in late 1778. Edward JONES, son and namesake of the pioneer planter of Shocco Creek, was State Senator from Bute. On January 20, 1779, he offered in the Senate his own bill for the division of Bute County.

It was read and passed the first time and sent to the Commons, where its first reading and return was accomplished on the same day. On the following day it was read a second time in the Senate, certain amendments were proposed and embodied, and it was returned again. The Commons sent it to the Senate once more on January 28, and on the same day the bill successfully passed its third reading. On January 29 the Commons, too, passed the bill on third reading and ordered it engrossed as State law.

The act provided for the division of Bute County approximately as first urged by SEAWELL, the northern and southern divisions to be named Warren and Franklin respectively. Commissioners were named to establish the new dividing line. From what would be Warren came William DUKE, now nearly seventy years old, who could remember when his patron William BYRD had once drawn another line, that Virginia boundary which henceforth would be Warren County's northern limit. With him served his neighbors Julius NICHOLS and John FAULCON, and from what would be Franklin came John NORWOOD and Matthew THOMAS.⁸

The commissioners began their duties almost at the exact time when disaster befell North Carolina's forces in Georgia.

General Benjamin LINCOLN'S army, entering Georgia, included some 2,000 North Carolina Continental troops and militia under Jethro SUMNER and John ASHE. ASHE was badly beaten and put to flight at Briar Creek on March 3, and SUMNER, with LINCOLN'S main body, suffered defeat at Stono Ferry in June. After that, SUMNER participated in the unsuccessful siege of Savannah in the autumn and fell back to Charleston with LINCOLN even as the border between the new counties of Warren and Franklin was finally established.

The boundary commission had procured the services of twenty-seven-year-old William CHRISTMAS as surveyor. He was a member of a family that had come early from Virginia, and members of it had served in various county and provincial offices. The CHRISTMASSES had a vigorous and sometimes violent reputation; modern descendants have remembered, with some pride, the tradition that no less than three men named CHRISTMAS were hanged for murder in the early years of the country and that such murder might seem fully justified at the moment of its commission. William CHRISTMAS had qualified as a surveyor at the age of eighteen, having given his bond in 1770. Probably it was he who persuaded the commissioners to follow for most of the dividing line the winding course of Little Shocco and Shocco creeks.⁹

Decision as to the locations of the courthouses was also referred to the commissioners. For the Warren County courthouse FAULCON and DUKE were joined by Colonel William JOHNSON, Philemon HAWKINS, Edward JONES, and Adkin MCLEMORE. Again William CHRISTMAS may have helped them make up their minds, for they chose a tract of one hundred acres belonging to his uncle, Thomas CHRISTMAS, conveniently located near the center of Warren County.

This site was a pleasant, well-drained area, enclosed by Horse, Possumquarter, and Fishing creeks. It bore not a single dwelling place, though Thomas CHRISTMAS' home was near at hand. Perhaps half a mile to eastward near Possumquarter Creek stood a small knot of buildings at the point where the stage coach road from Richmond forked, southeast toward Halifax and southwest past a church called Shade Grove near Shocco Creek, to continue toward South Carolina.

At this road fork was a store that sold provisions, cloth, tobacco, and liquor. There was also a blacksmith and wheelwright's shop, established to shoe the horses and repair the carriages of the stage line and others who traveled the road. This logical little nucleus of a town, complete with an established trafficway and the beginnings of a business district, was ignored by the founders of the county seat – perhaps because they chose to buy land from the uncle of their useful and influential young surveyor. Upon the hundred-acre plot was marked a central square as site for the court house, the jail, and the stocks. One hundred lots of half an acre each were also mapped to be sold by subscription at $50 each. The remainder of the tract was designated as a common.¹⁰

Expenses of the survey, submitted to the officers of the vanishing Bute County, came to 565 pounds, 16 shillings and 16 pence in the woefully depreciated currency of North Carolina.¹¹

Meanwhile, a much more pressing summons to duty was heard, by William CHRISTMAS and by all other men of Warren County who were capable of bearing arms.

LINCOLN'S army had been trapped in Charleston and forced to surrender on May 12, 1780. With his captured troops were nearly 1,500 North Carolinians. Brigadier General Jethro SUMNER had escaped only because he was ill and absent, and with his brigade in British war prisons, he came back to North Carolina to raise more troops. Lord Charles CORNWALLIS, British commander who had won again and again from Americans, was left at captured Charleston with a strong force of infantry, cavalry, and artillery for the purpose of marching to continue the subjugation of the South. He looked to the invasion of North Carolina.

This baleful news of defeat stiffened many a Warren County backbone by sheer shock. Again the county provided a company of militia, and John MACON, veteran of Valley Forge and more recently a member of the House of Commons, was made captain to command it.

John MACON'S younger brother Nathaniel had not served since his duty with the New Jersey troops in 1776, and he had been reading law at the old court house that had once been the center of Bute County's government. Only twenty years old, Nathaniel nevertheless had considerable popularity and influence in the Shocco Creek neighborhood. He was offered a lieutenancy in his brother's company but refused it, preferring to serve in the ranks.¹² With him enlisted a sturdy fourteen year old, James TURNER.¹³ William CHRISTMAS abandoned his post as Warren County's surveyor to command a company of Independent Rifles.

John MACON'S company marched that May to rendezvous with other militia on the plantation of William BETTS in Wake County. There it became part of a regiment commanded by Benjamin SEAWELL, who two years before had first offered in the Assembly a bill for dividing Bute County. This regiment was to march, after brief basic training, to join SUMNER'S new brigade, but it refused to leave camp because a promised bounty of $150 per man was not forthcoming.

Nathaniel MACON, who had refused a commission, declined also to apply for that bounty or for a soldier's pay. He was one of the very few who did not seem mutinous to the harassed Colonel SEAWELL and the North Carolina government.¹⁴ At last these difficulties were adjusted, and SEAWELL led his men in July to South Carolina, where SUMNER'S brigade was part of the army gathering under Horatio GATES, hero of Saratoga. GATES met CORNWALLIS on August 16 at Camden.

The Americans were soundly thrashed, though SUMNER won praise for rallying his troops for an orderly retreat while most of the others ran.¹⁵ On the following day, the survivors of the battle withdrew toward North Carolina, while CORNWALLIS delayed his pursuit. SUMNER, with SEAWELL'S regiment fairly intact, camped on the Yadkin and tried to make ready for another battle.

In September the Assembly tried to compensate for the near-worthlessness of Continental money by voting a tax in kind – for every £100 value in property, a citizen must give his county a certain measure of grain or meat. Granaries were ordered established, and on Lot 44 in newly-incorporated Warrenton a shed was pressed into service to store the produce thus assessed. Cheerful news arrived at last – the British invasion has been slowed by the American victory at King's Mountain in October. Nathaniel GREENE replaced GATES in command of forces on the Yadkin and tried to recruit and supply his troops.

The army that had suffered in South Carolina numbered less than 2,500 and lacked arms, clothing, and provisions to supply more than half of this force. Even so, they maneuvered wisely, retreating with caution before the new advance of CORNWALLIS that December and into the cold new year of 1781.

Private Nathaniel MACON of the Warren County company must have been a heartening example to his comrades in the ranks.

He heard that he had been elected to serve in the State Senate and that the Assembly would meet on January 2. His brother John took leave to serve in the House of Commons. Surely it would be pleasant to do the same, to leave the cold camps and the perilous service and sit with other State leaders in a warm hall; but Private MACON announced that he would not leave his company. Apparently, he was in the ranks at Guilford Court House, where on March 15 GREENE fought CORNWALLIS to a stand still before retreating. CORNWALLIS, too badly handled to follow up his early success, turned away and headed for Wilmington on the coast. There he announced, without much appearance of conviction, that North Carolina had been utterly subjugated. After that he marched his army north again, harried by the skirmishing Americans.

Marriage of a Prominent Warehouseman

Methodist Church at Stem Crowded with the Friends of the Contracting Parties – Rev. W.L. CUNNINGGIM Ties the Gordian Knot.

It is said that in towns and cities of America if you will call the roll of the most successful men in life – men who have acquired most success in business or renown in professional life – you will in a large majority of instances find that they were brought up under the healthful influence of life in the country.

Strange as it may appear it is an indisputable fact. The marriage of Mr. John H. BULLOCK, of Oxford, to Miss Sallie M. BRAGG, who is truly one of Granville's most winsome ladies, just the amiable and lovely woman blending the qualities of mind and heart to cheer the life of our worthy friend John BULLOCK with joy and happiness.

He is one of the rising tobacconist, a successful warehouseman, a self-made man, who each succeeding year has added to his fortune and business reputation. Those who know him appreciate very highly his estimable qualities, his kind and obliging disposition and his unbending integrity. The ceremony which blended these two hearts together as one took place Wednesday afternoon, the 24th, at 8 o'clock, in the Methodist church at Stems, in the presence of a large number of friends from both town and county, Rev. W.L. CUNNINGGIM, late pastor of the Methodist church in Oxford, officiating. The following were waiters: J.D. BULLOCK and Miss Nannie JEFFREYS, W.H. WALLER and Miss Lucy FARRABOW, Will LANDIS and Miss Emma STEM, Preston FARRABOW and Miss Lizzie BRAGG, J.C. HASKINS and Miss Mary DUNCAN, Milton BRAGG and Miss Addie WEBB, Sam BULLOCK and Miss Dora KIMBALL, R.J. JEFFREYS and Miss Lucy HOBGOOD.

After Mr. and Mrs. BULLOCK had received the congratulations of their many friends the wedding party left for Oxford where a reception was tendered them at the Club House, under the management of Mrs. Loge MEADOWS.

May the blessings of God be with the happy pair all through life is the wish of the Public Ledger.

Don't Argue with Children!

A little girl was talking to her teacher about whales. The teacher said it was physically impossible for a whale to swallow a human because even though it was a very large mammal its throat was very small. The little girl stated that Jonah was swallowed by a whale. Irritated, the teacher reiterated that a whale could not swallow a human; it was physically impossible. The little girl said, "When I get to heaven I will ask Jonah". The teacher asked, "What if Jonah went to hell?" The little girl replied, "Then you ask him".
