From the President—

This quarter has been very busy for me. In October, I attended a UDC convention in Durham representing the group as the NC Division Registrar. From the reports given we had a very productive year honoring more veterans than ever before.

Allen Dew filled in for me at the October meeting and gave a very interesting program on how to interpret information found on Ancestry and other internet programs while doing your research. When it comes to computers and the internet Allen is a whiz at both. He had a question and answer session with his program. This is a very good way to get answers to a lot of your questions in genealogy.

Also in October I worked for the Board of Elections at the one stop voting place in Southern Granville County. This is a job that I love to do as I get to see people that I don't get to see except at voting time.

On my one Saturday off during October, I signed up for a class for Conceal and Carry. I took the class and passed it both class work and shooting. Had my fingerprints done at the Sheriff's office and now waiting on my card for my wallet. With so many Senior Citizens being targeted now, you need to protect yourself no matter how old you are. I feel safer now that I know I can protect myself.

In November due to the elections I had to miss another GCGS meeting and Allen Dew filled in again for me. The program he did was on what you can find on a death certificate. He had a question and answer session with the program. Sorry I missed that one. In my working years, I had to type them until the law was changed so the funeral home would be responsible for typing them.

The month of November started off with a bang. While still working the one stop voting I received a text message that North Carolina had won two awards at the National Convention of the UDC held in Jacksonville Florida for the most new members and the most supplementals. This is the first time that North Carolina has won these two awards. As Division Registrar I had to check and approve all of these. So you can see how busy I was. Then after the one stop was over I had to work on election as Chief Judge in the Creedmoor Precinct on November 7.

In December the GCGS had "Pembo" Woodlief as our speaker. His topic was on the "Spirits" or whiskey distilleries as we know it. He brought some of his collection of bottles from the different towns, counties and states for us to see. This was a very interesting program. A lot of questions was asked during his presentation.

Coming up in January I will be presenting a program on Creedmoor and the families responsible for making the town what it is today. You will be surprised at what you will learn at the meeting. Only in Creedmoor did this happen.

Now on to celebrate the Christmas holidays with our family. The second page of this newsletter was very interesting to me and I thought you may enjoy it too. I had never thought of this song this way. You never know when you will run across something like this.

Don't forget to take a lot of pictures this Christmas so future generations will have them.

Wishing you a very Merry Christmas and a Happy Prosperous New Year.

Happy researching,

Mildred C. Goss

What do leaping lords, French hens, swimming swans, and especially the partridge who won't come out of the pear tree have to do with Christmas?

From 1558 until 1829, Roman Catholics in England were not permitted to practice their faith openly. Someone during that era wrote this carol as a catechism song for young Catholics. It has two levels of meaning: the surface meaning plus a hidden meaning known only to members of their church. Each element in the carol has a code word for a religious reality which the children could remember.

- The partridge in a pear tree was Jesus Christ.
- Two turtle doves were the Old and New Testaments.
- Three French hens stood for faith, hope and love.
- The four calling birds were the four gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke & John.
- The five golden rings recalled the Torah or Law, the first five books of the Old Testament.
- The six geese a-laying stood for the six days of creation.
- Seven swans a-swimming represented the sevenfold gifts of the Holy Spirit--Prophesy, Serving, Teaching, Exhortation, Contribution, Leadership, and Mercy.
- The eight maids a-milking were the eight beatitudes.
- Nine ladies dancing were the nine fruits of the Holy Spirit--Love, Joy, Peace, Patience, Kindness, Goodness, Faithfulness, Gentleness, and Self Control.
- The ten lords a-leaping were the ten commandments.
- The eleven pipers piping stood for the eleven faithful disciples.
- The twelve drummers drumming symbolized the twelve points of belief in the Apostles' Creed.

GCGS Deaths for September, October, November 2017

Editors Note: This listing shows the deaths from the obituaries of three newspapers (Oxford Public Ledger, Butner/Creedmoor News, Henderson Dispatch) for the specified time. Names are listed as they appear in the papers. Their listed age, whether they were Buried or Cremated (many people would be looking for a tombstone and gravesites with burials, but with cremations they need to look for a death certificate or an obit). The date of death and parents if listed. Some Funeral Homes do not list the parents.

Mr. L. C. Harris Dead

Oxford Public Ledger on 9 March 1912

On February 18th, at 2:30 p. m., this community was shocked to learn of the death of one of Granville’s most highly esteemed citizens, Mr. Lenard C. Harris. His death was not a surprise, as he reached his 71st year. In 1858 Mr. Harris joined the M. E. Church, and since that time had been a faithful follower of Christ; he was always present at his Church when there was preaching or Sunday school. February 14, 1836, he chose for his companion Miss Martha Blackley, who passed away August 31, 1909. Mr Harris was a man that would always speak a good word and lend a helping hand to those in distress. He was laid away Monday, February 18th, at the old burying ground, and there assembled around his grave a large host of friends and relatives to render the last tribute of respect to his memory.

Mr. Harris leaves behind only one brother, Mr. Atlas Harris, four sons, Messrs. W. D., L. T., A. T. and P. H. Harris, and one daughter Mrs. Joy Longmire, and a host of friends and relatives. To the burial service we quote: “As we stand by the mystical stream, in the valley and by the Dark River of Death, and yet ‘tis no more than a dream.”

The funeral service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. L. H. Joyner, and the beautiful songs of his choice, “Shall we Meet Beyond the River,” and “Abide with Me” was beautifully rendered.

Mrs. Martha Dickerson Dead

Oxford Public Ledger on 9 March 1912

On Tuesday evening, February 27th, death invaded the home of Mr. J. W. Dickerson and claimed for its own his loving wife Martha, she being a victim of that terrible disease, consumption, for a long time and her death was not unexpected, but it was none the less sad. She had been married only a few years. She suffered untold agony during her illness, and death came as a relief from her suffering. She leaves behind to mourn her death a loving husband and dear little girl and a host of relatives and friends, and we point them all to our dear loving Father, who doeth all things well and makes no mistakes. Though she cannot come to you, you can go to her. God hath said in his precious word that he hath a place of rest for all those that love and serve him. She was laid to rest in the old family burying ground at Mr. A. R. Hicks, near Dickerson, amid a concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends, there to await the resurrection morn. The floral tributes were beautiful. Rev. J. B. Weatherspoon had charge of the burial services here, though her funeral services were conducted at her home in Durham. The pall bears were Messrs. H. H. Hicks, J. T. Mangum, Charlie Hicks, R. L. Brummitt, A. R. Hicks and J. P. Tunstall.

Survey Notes 125 Granville Structures

by Mary Beth Starr in Durham Herald on 20 Jan 1987.

OXFORD — Marvin Brown will recommend 125 Granville County structures to be placed on a study list for the National Register of Historic Places, and that historic districts be set up within the city of Oxford.

Brown recently completed exhaustive surveys of 525 historic homes, using more than 300 rolls of film and completing computer forms on the homes.

Patricia Esperon is helping research the history of the homes through deeds and old newspaper clippings, but mostly interviews with the families.

Each home will have a one- to three-page description when the project is completed.

The buildings are recommended for the National Register because of their age, architecture, rarity and condition.

"All of them are not in the best condition, but they are all salvageable," he said.

Most are homes, but he also recommends the First National Bank Building in Creedmoor, the early 19th century Amis-Dalton Mill (said to be one of the largest mills still standing in Eastern North Carolina), and the Brassfield Baptist Church. (Built before the Civil War, the church still has the original interior, including a slave gallery at the back on the second floor).

An old jail, ca. 1890, inside Oxford, still has heavy wooden plank doors and tightly fitted studs in the walls.

There are two other mills and several churches on the list.

A section of Red Hill, a plantation house in the northern part of the county, is probably the oldest structure in the county, estimated at the late 1770s. But others in the county cannot be dated, Brown said, and could be as old.

The homes closer to the Virginia border were built first, he said, when people began to migrate down, looking for land.

After the Civil War, the large farmers moved into Oxford and built elaborate homes. The more modest farm houses were leased to tenants.

Within Oxford, "you could teach an architectural history class," Brown said. "Every style that was popular in the country over a period of 125 years or more is found along College Street, High Street, Front Street, Spring Street and Main Street."

Some of the more interesting farm houses include the John H. Lawrence House in the Brassfield area, which has remained in the same family and is still occupied.

"It has the original kitchen and smokehouse. It is built on a rise with lots of trees up front. It still retains the marbleizing on the interior, where it is painted to look like marble."

Elmwood, in the Lewis and Gila areas of northern Granville, is "one of the finest Georgian-style residences in the Piedmont," he said. It is unoccupied but retains almost all its original finish.

Abrams Plains, up past Stovall, is already listed on the National Register. The back section was probably built in the 18th century.

Some of the homes have been moved, some with the chimney intact. The Bryan-Kingsbury Home on Goshen Street used to stand at the head of Main Street.

One turn-of-the-century farmhouse was moved 300 to 400 yards by tying a rope around a tree and turning a wench. The home was moved gradually over weeks, he said.

Other historical research has turned up some ghost stories, including one legend that anyone who wrote in the house would cause blood to drip down on the paper.

Brown said he found out about the legend after he had been inside the house making architectural notes and no blood dripped on his paper. The home was owned by the Latta family and built in the early 19th century.

Margaret Watson Brummitt – Before death certificates

by Linda A. Perdue

Recently, I have been researching one of the children of John Brummitt and Margaret Bethia Bobbitt Brummitt – Miss Margaret Watson Brummitt. Using Ancestry.com, I have found information that provides Margaret's approximate birth date, her marriage as well as several census entries. I reviewed several different family trees, found that no one seemed to have a death date for her – some indicated 1910 – but she is not listed in the 1900 census and her husband is listed as a widower – so I determined her death must be before the 1900 census was taken. Let's review what we do know about Margaret.

The 1870 census lists a Margaret M Brunnott (should be Margaret W Brummitt), age 14, having been born about 1856. In the 1870 census she is living with her father's family in Fishing Creek township of Granville County.

The household lists:

- John Brummitt, 56
- Margaret R Brummitt, 45
- Thomas J Brummitt, 25
- Ira C Brummitt, 23
- Mary C Brummitt, 19
- John M Brummitt, 17
- Margaret M Brummitt, 14
- Rufus B Brummitt, 13 (My Great Grandfather)
- Dowd E G Brummitt (should be Durell E Brummitt), 6
- Henry A Brummitt, 4

A marriage is found for Margaret Watson Brummitt. At the age of 17, she married James Howell Pool, 26 on 30 March 1873 in Granville County.

The 1880 census lists a Maggie W. Pool, born about 1857. Spouse's name is James H. Pool. Maggie is 23 years of age and works keeping house. James is now 33. Maggie has two girls living in the household. Cora, 6 and Alligood, 4.

The 1900 Census lists James H. Pool as a widow, having Margaret Watson Brummitt Pool passing between the 1890 census and 1900 census.

Interesting facts in this census entry.

- James H Pool is the keeper of a cemetery. His address is listed as Breckenridge Street in Henderson (Vance County) North Carolina. Assumption: he is the keeper of Elmwood Cemetery which is located on Breckenridge Street.
- Children living with James include:
 - Johnnie, born June 1881, 18 years old – occupation is listed as Provision Dealer
 - Kemp (son) born May 1885 – at school
Found note that he may be Kemp Dudley Pool born 1884, died 1950)
 - Sophia born May 1887 – at school
Found information that her birthdate is 08 May 1887, died in Henderson, 1972.
 - Celestia born about July 1890 – at school
 - Allie appears to have married to a man with the last name of “Batts”
 - Eugene Batts, son in law of James H Pool. Allie’s husband (black spot on census record where age is listed)

The compilation of this information leads us to this conclusion:

- 1) Margaret (Maggie) Watson Brummitt Pool had a child, Celestia, in July 1890.
- 2) This is the last child that appears to have been born (or at least survived till the 1900 census)
- 3) Margaret is no longer living by the 1900 census as her husband is listed as a widower.

Since this is before the time of death certificates, the best way to find this information in my experience is through a family bible, cemetery (tombstone) or the newspaper. My first search (since I don’t have a family bible with this information) is to search the newspapers that are online at newspapers.com – I searched for several different keywords without finding any potential hits. Finally, this little snippet shows promise! Search criteria included the time frame (1890-1900) and the surname of Pool. Also, restricted to newspapers in the Oxford and Henderson areas of North Carolina.

Miss Cora Pool, of Henderson, is visiting relatives in the Clay section and was at the grave of her dear mother who died in July last and placed fresh evergreens and flowers upon the mound Sunday evening last.

“Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the North
wind’s breath
And stars to set—but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own,
O Death!”

“Leaves have their time to fall,

The oldest child of Margaret Watson Brummitt Pool is Miss Cora Pool. This little snippet is listed under the GRANVILLE GREETINGS – A Grand Sermon – Two Marriages, Personal, Etc.

If this indicates that her mother “died in July last”, and it is now October – this means she passed away in July 1893. No further information has been found at this time, but this is a fairly narrow window for her death based on a small newspaper clipping found while searching for family information.

NOTE: It does appear that many of the family trees on Ancestry are missing this piece of information and have no real clue as to when Margaret passed. This gives a clue, although the burial location may remain a mystery without any further information either published or within the immediate family to provide clues.

If anyone has any further information on Margaret Watson Brummitt with respect to where she may be buried, an exact date for her death, or an obituary – please contact Linda Perdue at laperdue@gte.net – thank you in advance!

William Robert Kirkland – death

Compiled by Linda A. Perdue

William Robert Kirkland is the son of William D. Kirkland and Ann Russell Cawthorn (death certificate, 1860, 1870, 1880 census entries). He was born in January 1848 (1900 census entry). William R. Kirkland died on January 12, 1906 in Brassfield township, Granville County, North Carolina. William R. Kirkland had several siblings:

1. Caroline Kirkland (September 27, 1856-January 12, 1906) married Charlie O Jones
2. Cornelia Kirkland (about 1864 – May 15, 1936). First married Roger S. Jones (died), then married Beverly Eakes.
3. Virginia Ann Kirkland (February 1869 - August 8, 1935) married Rufus B. Brummitt
4. Charles Kirkland is listed in the 1860 census but does not appear in the 1870 or 1880 therefore it is concluded he must have died young but no further evidence has been found yet.

Death of W. R. Kirkland

Oxford Public Ledger (Oxford, North Carolina) 16 October 1915, Saturday, Page 8

As we write these few articles, news of the death of Mr. W. R. Kirkland comes to us, which occurred on the 9th of October, at the home of Mr. Berkly Eakes in Brassfield township. Mr. Kirkland in many respects was an interesting man, having his own peculiar ways but he was a conservative man, and had about him the happy faculty of accepting things as they were and always endured what could not be cured, he has been suffering for some time previous to his death with a cancer which was the cause of his death. We never knew him to murmur or complain from the affects of the same. He was a man who loved nature and his admiration for anything he liked was deep and strongly rooted. His remains were deposited back into the bosom of old mother earth in the cemetery of S. Tippet home place where rests the relatives who have preceeded him. Our sympathy is extended to his beraved relatives. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Eugene Usry of Oxford.

Death Records: A Check List of Ten Documents Every Genealogist Should Acquire

The following article was written by Bill Dollarhide:

Here are ten places to look for a death record. All ten sources should be checked for every ancestor on your pedigree chart, and every member of a family on your family group sheet.

1. Death Certificate. A rule in genealogy is to treat the brothers and sisters of your ancestors as equals. That means you need to obtain genealogical sources for all of them. For instance, for every ancestor on your pedigree chart, and for every brother or sister of an ancestor, you need to obtain a death certificate (assuming they are dead). If there were six siblings in an ancestor's family, a death certificate for each brother and sister will give six different sources about the same parents; places where the family lived; names of spouses; names of cemeteries; names of funeral directors; and other facts about a family. If a death certificate for your ancestor fails to provide the name of the deceased's mother, a sibling's death certificate may give the full maiden name. How do you get a death certificate? Go to the www.vitalrec.com site, where every state and county is listed, and where you can find out where, when, and how much. Start with a death certificate, because the names, dates, and places you will find on a death certificate will always lead you to further records.

Dollarhide's rule No. 1: Death Certificates are rarely filled in by the person who died.

2. Funeral record. A death certificate may mention the name and location of a funeral director. Find a current funeral home in North America at www.funeralnet.com. This site has the listings from a directory of funeral homes called The Yellow Book, a published directory distributed annually to every funeral home in the U.S. and Canada. The current funeral home nearest your location will have a copy of The Yellow Book, and if you were to stop by and ask to look up another funeral home anywhere in the U.S. and Canada, they would probably allow it. Don't stop there when a funeral is in progress. A funeral record may include names of survivors; names of the persons responsible for the funeral expenses; and often, obscure biographical information about the deceased not available anywhere else. Modern funeral records are full of genealogical information about the person who died and may include copies of newspaper obituaries, death certificates, printed eulogies, funeral programs, and other details about the person. A reference to a burial permit, cremation, or cemetery can be found here as well. Generally, funeral directors are very easy to talk to and they are usually cooperative (they want your family's business). Even if the old name of a funeral home is not listed in a current directory, it should be possible to locate the current funeral home holding the records of an earlier one. These businesses rarely go out of business, but are more often taken over by another funeral director. If at one time a town had two or three funeral homes, but only one today, the Yellow Book listing is still the source for finding the current funeral home in that town, which can lead you to information about the older funeral home. Funeral directors are also experts on the location of cemeteries in their area.

Dollarhide's rule No. 2: When visiting a funeral home, wear old clothes, no make-up, and look like you have about a week to live – the funeral director will give you anything you ask for if he thinks you may be a customer soon.

3. Cemetery Record. If the name of a cemetery is mentioned on the death certificate or funeral record, that cemetery is now a source of information about the person who died. There may be a record in the sexton's office of the cemetery, or off-site at a caretaker's home; and the gravestone inscription may be revealing as well. When you contact a funeral home, ask about the cemetery where the person was buried, and whether they have an address or phone number for the cemetery office, or at least know who might be the keeper of records for the cemetery. At the same time, ask the funeral director for the names of monument sellers/stone masons who cater to cemeteries in the area. As a back-up, a local stone mason may have a record of a monument inscription for the deceased's gravestone. To locate a cemetery anywhere in the United States, a special list can be obtained from the United States Geological Survey (USGS) within their Geographic Names Information System (GNIS). The GNIS contains the names of over two million place-names (map features) in America, of which about 107,000 are cemeteries. The GNIS website is located at <http://geonames.usgs.gov/>. Click on "Domestic Names" to search for any named cemetery.

Dollarhide's rule No. 3: The cemetery where your ancestor was buried does not have perpetual care, has no office, is accessible only by a muddy road, and has snakes, tall grass, and lots of bugs... and many of the old gravestones are in broken pieces, stacked in a corner under a pile of dirt.

4. Obituary. A newspaper obituary was probably published soon after the person's death. Old newspapers from the town where the person died are usually available at the local public library. They may be on microfilm. Find the website for any library in the U.S. at the Lib-Web-Cats site, a directory of libraries throughout the world. See www.librarytechnology.org/libwebcats/. If the library responds but says it is unable to look for an obituary or make copies for you, then you may need to find a person living in that town to go to the library for you. One way to locate such a person is to write to a local genealogical society and ask if they know someone who can do a bit of research for you. Most genealogical societies have a volunteer who responds to such requests, and there will most likely be a small fee for this service. A good list of American genealogical societies is in Elizabeth Petty Bentley, editor, The Genealogist's Address Book (Baltimore: Genealogical Publishing Co., Inc., 6th edition, 2009). You may also find your genealogy friend on the Internet. Do a place search for people involved in genealogy in a particular place near where you need help, drop them an E-mail message and promise to do something in exchange for them. A huge collection of historic newspaper obituaries are now on the Internet. The largest sites devoted to newspapers are 1) www.GenealogyBank.com, and 2) www.newspaperarchive.com. Check also www.cyndislist.com under the category "obituaries" for direct links to websites on the Internet specific to actual obituaries transcribed and made available in various sites. Also, use www.google.com to search for obituaries with a keyword for a place or name of a newspaper, which should provide names, dates, etc., and what may be available. Example of keywords in the Google search box, "Obituaries Topeka." or "Kansas City Star Obituaries."

5. Social Security record. If a person died within the last 35 years or so, the death certificate probably includes the deceased's social security number. With or without a person's social security number, you can write for a copy of any deceased person's original application for a social security card, called a form SS-5. Since 1935, virtually every working person in America has applied for a social security account. The Social Security Death Index (SSDI) needs to be consulted to see if the person is listed. Most people who died since 1962 should be listed there. A free online search services can be found as part of the FamilySearch site. See The SS Death Index at FamilySearch.org.

A search in the SSDI can be made by the surname and first name, or adding other options for a date or place of an event death. With the name and social security number, you can obtain a copy of the deceased's application (Form SS-5) for a social security account, which was filled in by the person and gives his/her full name, date and place of birth, place of residence, name of parents, occupation, and name of employer.

Dollarhide's Rule no. 4: A Social Security Form SS-5 is better than a birth certificate because few people had anything to do with the information on their own birth certificate.

6. Probate Records. Details pertaining to a deceased person's estate may be located in a county courthouse. These records may provide important information about the heirs of the deceased. Probate records may include docket (court calendars), recorded wills, administrator's records, inventories of estates, sheriff's sales, or judgments. Microfilmed probate records for nearly every county in the U.S., are located at the Family History Library in Salt Lake City. To find them, go to the www.familysearch.org site. Do a "place" search for a state, then click on "Review Related Places" to see a list of the counties for that state. The topics listed include probate records, and a review of what records have been filmed can be located quickly.

7. Private Death Records (Insurance Papers, Medical Records, Etc.). If the deceased had insurance, there is undoubtedly a record of the death within the insurance company's files. There may be much more information concerning the deceased's survivors, and the disposition of an estate. Hospital records are almost always closed, but a close family member may be able to get some information; and records at a Doctor's Office are also usually closed, but again, close family members may be given access. The cover sheet of a patient's file in a Hospital, Nursing Home, or Doctor's Office, is almost always the page containing vital information, including birth, marriage, divorce, occupation, health insurance, and name of closest kin or person to contact in an emergency. A close family member should be able to access that information.

8. Coroner and Medical Examiner Records exist for any person who died under suspicious conditions, or for whom an autopsy was performed, or in most cases for people who died outside of a hospital. Coroner records are public records kept at the county level in virtually all states. In addition to the circumstances of the death, there may be vital details about the deceased. Locating a Coroner or Medical Examiner for a county is not difficult. Many have their own websites, or are part of a county government website. Do a Google search using keywords such as "Coroner King County." The office of a Medical Examiner is used in some counties or cities in lieu of the office of coroner.

9. Military Records for deceased veterans are public records. The National Archives and Records Administration, National Personnel Records Center (Military Records Facility) is located at 9700 Page Ave., St. Louis, MO 63132-5100. Write for a form SF-80 to request copies from any soldier or sailor's military file. Their online website is at www.archives.gov/st-louis/military-personnel/index.html. Next of kin to a deceased veteran can access data online. Others need to use the form SF-80 to obtain information about the deceased veteran.

10. Church Records. A death record may be recorded within a church's records, plus information about a burial. Check www.cyndislist.com under the category "Religion and Church" to survey what is available online.

Go get the death records! A death certificate is not enough, and may not even be correct. If you know a person's exact date and place of death, there are several more sources relating to a person's death. If you get these other death records, you will certainly learn more about your ancestors.

Mrs. P. Thorpe Dead

Oxford Public Ledger – 1 October 1909

Member of Prominent Granville Family Passes Away in Oak Hill – Large Attendance at Funeral

On last Sunday, the 26th, at 12.30 o'clock, Mrs. Peterson Thorpe, after an illness of almost exactly a week's duration, died at her home in Oak Hill. The remains were laid to rest on the following Monday at Goshen in the presence of a large concourse of relatives and friends, there being present a great many attendants from Oxford and Henderson.

Mrs. Thorpe, who up to a week previous to her death, was apparently in good health, but on the 19th, she was stricken with paralysis, from the stroke of which there did not seem to be hope for recovery at any time. Her general condition weakened from the first.

Mrs. Thorpe was the wife of the late Mr. P. Thorpe, one of Granville's foremost citizens, who died last December. She was the daughter of Dr. William Thorpe and his wife, who was a Miss Young. Five children are left to mourn the loss of their mother: Misses Belle and Lucy Thorpe, and Messrs. Henry, Wesley and Benjamin Thorpe. She also leaves two sisters: Mrs. Herbert Gregory, and Mrs. Charles H. Landis.

The funeral services were conducted by Bishop Cheshire, of Raleigh, and these were the pallbearers: Mess. John Satterwhite, Willie Daniel, Felix Bumpass, Jim Hart, A. A. Hicks, Seymour Hart, Ben Adcock, and John Bailey.

Mrs. Thorpe's death is a great loss to scores of sorrowing friends and relatives. She will be greatly missed.
